the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million (19.5% of the population).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the Government has set out a strategy for the 21st century in the White Paper on Ageing Better: The Government's Strategy for Older People (Department of Health 1999). This strategy is based on the following principles:

- Older people should be able to live independently and actively in their own homes.
- Older people should be able to live in their own communities.
- Older people should be able to live in their own homes and communities for as long as possible.
- Older people should be able to live in their own homes and communities with dignity and respect.

The White Paper also sets out a number of key objectives for the Government to achieve by 2010:

- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes and communities for as long as possible.
- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes and communities with dignity and respect.
- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes and communities with the support they need.
- To ensure that older people are able to live in their own homes and communities with the services they need.

The White Paper also sets out a number of key actions for the Government to achieve by 2010:

DEDICATION

With much pride, we gratefully dedicate this '55 Dorian to Mr. Al Best—our friend and helper. His willingness to aid us in our many problems . . . his steady interest in school and students . . . his fine job as teacher and class advisor . . . and his excellent coaching on the athletic field are combined in supporting this fine choice!

"WHAT CONSTITUTES
GOOD CITIZEN?"

How would you answer this question? It came from an eighth grade student as a part of a class citizenship project.

HERE'S THE WAY A CATERPILLAR EXECUTIVE ANSWERED IT:

"To describe a good citizen in a few words is most difficult—much like trying to describe our great country in a few words. However, some qualifications of a good citizen certainly would be:

- A fundamental belief in God.
- A deep sense of honesty and integrity.
- Moral character above reproach—the result of personal convictions rather than fear of public opinion.
- An interest in one's community coupled with a willingness to work long and hard for its betterment.
- A true sense of value, recognizing that there is no such thing as something for nothing. Everything we achieve, everything we get, must be earned.

- A love of the freedoms guaranteed by our Constitution and Bill of Rights, and a willingness to protect these freedoms.
- A desire to search for and find the truth and not be swayed by the emotions of others.
- A sense of duty when it comes to exercising our great American privilege of voting, based on thoughtful consideration of the issue or office involved—and the same sense of duty when jury, military or public office responsibilities should be met.

It is difficult indeed to describe citizenship in a few words. I hope these thoughts will be helpful."
